

We're Howard County Home-Educators Corporation, the 501(c)(3) non-profit that operates Howard County Homeschooling. We thought to remind you of who we are and how we service your membership. Below is more information about us and the services we provide for you.

Who We Are

- We're a non-profit established in 2016, originating from a MOMS® Meetup group founded in 2014.
- Based in Columbia, MD; we're members of the Home School Legal Defense Association.
- Privately owned, we make corporate business decisions focused on the long term.

What We Do

- While we operate in the background, you may see our name on your statements, tax documents, and more.
- We approve teachers, curriculum and maintain insurance coverage and legal status, among other functions.
- We're legally charged with the responsibility of governing the corporation and its subsidiaries.

What We Are NOT

- We are not a private or charter school.
- We are not an umbrella group overseeing portfolio reviews.
- We are not a common core organization offering a full school day.

What We Offer

- We provide extracurricular activities and offer an a-la-carte, supplemental approach to homeschooling.
- We host social events and field trips that support and enrich what's already taught in the home.
- We give your child an opportunity to connect with peers in a group setting on a regular basis.

OUR MISSION is to provide a communal space for homeschooling families to educate and socialize their children in a nature-based, classroom environment.
